KIRIBATI BUILDING ACT 2024

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

This Act revises the law relating to the construction and occupation of buildings in the South Tarawa, Kiritimati and any other designated buildings in the outer islands.

Part I provides for the Act to come into operation on a date to be appointed by the Minister. This should be read with the transitional provisions in Part X of the Act. Also in Part I are definitions for the purposes of the Act. The Act applies to construction of “buildings” and “structures” covered under the Regulations. Regulations made under the Act will also specify building work and other structures which are to be exempted from the requirement for a building permit.

Part II deals with administration of the Act. It includes a statement of the responsibilities of the Minister and the functions of the Ministry. A function of the Ministry will be to assist building practitioners, land owners and others to comply with the Building Code, including publication of a Kiribati Building Manual.

Part III requires building owners to ensure that their buildings are structurally sufficient, safe, accessible, climate resilient and stable for their intended use and for building work to be carried out in a proper, skilful and safe way. The Act further require compliance with acceptable standards for construction materials locally sourced and imported into Kiribati.

Part IV provides for the making of a Kiribati Building Code. The purpose of the Building Code is to establish a uniform set of minimum standards and technical provisions for the design, construction and performance of buildings and other structures. It also provides for the Ministry to make a Kiribati Building Manual as an accompanying document, with the purposes of providing a pathway to comply with the Act and the Building Code.

Part V imposes the requirement that a building permit be obtained before any building works are carried out. An obligation is imposed on the owner of the land to ensure that this occurs. The procedure for obtaining a building permit will be set out in Regulations, and the Ministry is to establish appropriate forms and make these available for download from the internet. The application form may require that application and accompanying plans be certified. Initially, certification will be by an appropriately qualified person. After an initial period, certification will be required by an appointed building certifier. The fees for building permit applications will be prescribed. Where the approval authority seeks expert advice about aspects of the application, the cost of this advice will be charged to the applicant.

Part VI deals with building works, including building inspections, the issuing of a completion certificate and occupation of the building following the issuing of a certificate of occupancy.

Part VII sets out new provisions intended to upgrade the quality of the building industry in Kiribati. The Act establishes a Building and Engineers Registration Board, which will be tasked with the registration of building professionals. The Board will be empowered to refuse registration to persons who do not have the required qualifications or are not of good character. The Board will oversee the continuing professional development of registered building professionals and issue codes of conduct.

Part VIII provides for appointments for the purposes of the Act.

Part IX deals with compliance and enforcement. While the Act continues to impose heavy penalties for non-compliance, it enables enforcement action to be taken where less severe intervention is appropriate such as the issue of stop work notices, notices to make good and infringement notices. Infringement penalties will be prescribed by the Regulations. In more severe cases, there is provision for suspension and cancellation of building cases as well as court-issued injunctions. The Part also continues provision in relation to the prosecution of offences.

Part X contains miscellaneous provisions. These include the repeal of the Building Act 2006 and several transitional provisions. For existing buildings, upgrading to comply with the Building Code will be introduced in stages. An existing “importance level 4” building will need to be assessed and upgraded by 1 January 2034. For all buildings compliance with Building Code performance requirements will be required at the time of a significant alteration occurring.
