FISHERIES AMENDMENT ACT 2025

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

This Act amends the Fisheries Act 2010 and its subsequent amendments. The amendments implement assorted legal fisheries issues identified over the past several years. The amendments also bring the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea [UNCLOS].

The amendment to section 8 brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the UNCLOS.

Clause 12 A (3) (c) is amended to ensure that the contract that is entered into to control marine genetic research contains provisions that address benefit sharing, traceability and intellectual property rights. It further amends subsection (4) and inserts a new subsection (5) to bring the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the UNCLOS.

The amendment to sections 14A brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the UNCLOS.

The amendment to Part 5A introduces the new Part 5A which establishes both the Competent Authority and Kiribati Seafood Toxicology Laboratory, including their roles and mandate. It also provides for the proper operation and enforcement of these bodies through regulations.

The amendment to section 16 brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the UNCLOS.

The amendment to section 23 is by inserting a new subsection (2A) to provide with the power of an enforcement officer to seize and take possession of any assets and property that are subject to any memorandum of understanding (MOU) between the Ministry and other bodies or authorities.

The amendment to section 27 again brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the United Nations Law of the Sea.

The new Section 28C introduces the offence of bribery applicable to both those who offer and those who accept. Subsection (3), however, provides circumstances where an observer or an enforcement officer may not be subject to bribery.

The amendment to sections 29, 30 and 40 brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 of the United Nations Law of the Sea.

The new Section 44A brings the Act into compliance with Article 73 (4) of the United Nations Law of the Sea while Section 44B clarifies that where there is a conflict between the Fisheries Act or a regulation made under the Fisheries Act and any other Act or regulation that the Fisheries Act and regulations prevail over any other Act or regulation.

The amendments to Section 45 broaden the regulation making powers under the Act and ensures that treaties, protocols, codes, guidelines, standards and measures that are adopted continue to apply to the law of Kiribati even when they are amended in the future. This will support the implementation of electronic monitoring and reporting systems and the implementation of other emerging technologies. It will also provide for procedures to support cameras on fishing vessels by way of a Memorandum Of Understanding (MOU) between the Ministry and vessel owners.
